PDX-HEO

(Portland Housing Emergency Outreach and Community Safety) is a resource hub for Portland residents that are experiencing or are vulnerable to experiencing issues relating to homelessness. This is also a platform to educate Portland residents about the extent of the housing crisis impacting the Portland and Portland metro area, as well as inform them on ways that they can take action to make an impact in their communities and make Portland a safer and better place for house-less residents.

- Resource finder enables users to identify their location to see nearby homeless shelters, shelters for domestic violence victims, women and children. It also connects them with community resources that provide access to essential resources such as food, shelter, clothing, toiletries, etc.
- Community board acts as a forum where people can connect and share community based information relating to issues of poverty, homelessness, safety or other community concerns.
